JUST FOR MOM

Juicy Couture's fun and vibrant VIVA LA JUICY NOIR EDP celebrates the woman who's the life and soul of every party. Think succulent berry notes, vibrant mandarin, lush honeysuckle and silky sandalwood.

A year after the launch of Marni's signature fragrance, we get Marni Rose, which combines succulent rose absolute with the spicy facet of Bulgarian rose oil. Cardamom, mint nanah, raspberry, violet, bitter almond, cassis, cedarwood and musk add an unexpected twist – just as we'd expect from this slightly offbeat, confident brand. HAPPY HOMELAND

SA's famous not only for its weather, wildlife and natural beauty, but also for its happy population. As part of a project to produce guides to over 6 000 cities in its iPhone app, Jetpac City Guides analysed over 150 million Instagram photos using "geo-parsing" technology that can analyse people's smiles. The results show that SA has one of the highest "smile scores", a value based on the average size of smiles in photos. The City Guides iPhone app curates Instagram's data to help users find everything "from top bars with women wearing lipstick to coffee shops full of moustachioed men". 🌐 www.jetpac.com

KITE-SURFING FOR TOURISM

Anyone who knows the Western Cape coastal town of Langebaan is aware that it's a pretty windy place – ideal for kite-surfing enthusiasts, who flock there. Catering for this active crowd is the 35-roomed Windtown Lagoon & Resort. Well aware of the area's tourism potential, the resort's Managing Director, Ernest Knoors, says: "It was important to create jobs for the local people in line with the objectives of our joint-venture partner, the Industrial Development Corporation." With the addition of a kite-surfing school on an adjoining property, the project's created 40 direct jobs, with over 60 workers employed during the peak festive holiday season. ☎ 076 643 0195 🌐 www.windtown-sa.com

THE MADIBA JOURNEY

Developed by South African Tourism in partnership with the Nelson Mandela Centre of Memory, the Madiba-Inspired Tourist Attractions Map was recently launched by SA's Minister of Tourism, Marthinus van Schalkwyk (second from left). The initiative encourages visitors to experience historical places of interest and well-known attractions across the country, in the four provinces that defined Madiba's life. These include the Eastern Cape (where he spent his childhood), Gauteng (where he practised law, got married and became involved in the Struggle); KwaZulu-Natal (where he was captured before the Rivonia Trial) and the Western Cape, where he was imprisoned and ultimately freed.

"Most of the places associated with his life journey have teemed with visitors who've dedicated private notes and flowers as tokens of respect and remembrance, as South Africans – and, indeed, the world – try to come to terms with the loss of our nation's founding father," said Van Schalkwyk. "Not only was Mandela an incredible man and leader, but he was a truly global icon and his name put SA on the map. Mandela has inspired people from all corners of the globe to experience SA for themselves. It's thanks to his vision and principles that our tourism industry has grown this much since our first democratic elections 20 years ago." www.southafrica.net

RISE AND SHINE

Rapidly being restored to its former vibrant glory, Durban's Golden Mile has a new gem that's sure to attract tourism. Part of Tsogo Sun's R220 million investment in the Southern Sun Elangeni & Maharani beachfront hotel complex is the overhaul of Raffles, a famous bar that rocked the Maharani 30 years ago. It's been reincarnated as Sky, a glam, multi-purpose "venue with a view" on the 31st floor of the Maharani Tower, catering for functions such as conferences, launches and banquets. Pop up to the pool deck one floor up for dramatic vistas of the Indian Ocean and the sculptural Moses Mabhida Stadium.
